

HISTORIC TROLLEY BARNs

Downtown's New Center for Creativity and Innovation

The Entrepreneur Center on the Historic Trolley Barns

"The Creative Campus is an idea exchange," said Michael Burcham, President and CEO of the Entrepreneur Center, "When artists, entrepreneurs, businessmen, and technologists work in close proximity, an ecosystem of talent occurs causing great ideas to bubble up and create transformative growth."

"As a future tenant in Trolley Barn #1, the Entrepreneur Center will help make the Rolling Mill Hill creative campus Nashville's home for entrepreneurs," said Clayton McWhorter, Chairman of the Entrepreneur Center. "From its permanent facility, the Center will be able to launch upwards of 70 companies a year and drive economic growth throughout the region."

Hands On Nashville on the Historic Trolley Barns

"Hands On Nashville is extremely enthusiastic about its move to the Historic Trolley Barns," said Executive Director Brian N. Williams. "The rebirth of this property is a testament to Nashvillians' civic pride, creativity and camaraderie. Those same traits are exhibited by HON volunteers each day, which makes the Historic Trolley Barns an ideal location for Middle Tennessee's only volunteer resource center."

Center for Nonprofit Management on the Historic Trolley Barns

"The Center for Nonprofit Management is creating a true community home for the nonprofit sector, where innovation, creativity, and growth can occur," said Lewis Lavine, President, Center for Nonprofit Management.

Emma on the Historic Trolley Barns

"This is an exciting time for Emma as we plan for our next phase of growth here on Rolling Mill Hill in the Historic Trolley Barns," said Bo Spessard, COO of Emma. "This is an entrepreneurial venture in a start-up neighborhood where we will be surrounded by a number of Nashville's innovative and creative businesses right near the heart of downtown."

Centric Architecture on the Historic Trolley Barns

"As an architectural firm with interests in sustainable design, historic preservation and the revitalization of downtown Nashville, we can think of no better place to be than in an Historic Trolley Barn within Nashville's Rolling Mill Hill Development," said Marion Fowlkes, Principal, Centric Architecture.
